Course Description: This course will provide a survey of the Old Testament within the literary and theological context of the whole Bible. It focuses on the theological, literary, and historical dimensions of the Old Testament text and story; draws theological connections to major themes and figures of the Old Testament and its biblical theological emphases; and makes application to modern Christianity, both corporate (church) and personal (spiritual growth).

Texts:

ESV Bible (Available for free for those who do not have one, just ask)
[A journaling style ESV might be preferable for students]
Tremper Longman III. Introducing the Old Testament. Zondervan, 2012.

Additional Supplies:

A journal (or Journaling bible that can allow for note taking)
A notebook (if hand written), or binder (if typed) that will hold all course assignments.
Timeline book to establish where the writing of each biblical book falls (optional)

Purposes:

- The successful student will demonstrate a general knowledge of the content of the Hebrew Bible/Old Testament and its developed themes in the biblical canons and be able to articulate such understanding.
- This course relates to outcomes whereby the successful student will demonstrate knowledge and skills for accurate biblical interpretation, application to life situations and communication of the biblical message to others.

How to succeed in this course:

1. Complete assigned reading, chapter questions, and focus work BEFORE coming to class; Also while taking notes as you go, be prepared to both share and discuss the readings.
2. Review and prepare for quizzes and exams.
3. Reading and participation in discussion is highly encouraged. This is a “classically inspired” course. This means that I expect the students to come prepared, having read the assigned chapters, in order to participate in discussions.

Grading:

I will grade quizzes and exams on an A+ to F scale. Workbook assignments will not be graded, but will be marked as either completed or not completed. I will give feedback on the student’s preparedness, participation in class and diligence for their coursework, and if asked I will suggest the grade to give the student. However ultimately the parent will decide the most appropriate final grade for their student.
